Seneca Park Zoo to host Save the Frogs Day

Celebrate frogs at the Zoo with keeper chats, feeding demonstrations, and more

March 26, 2019 - Seneca Park Zoo is hosting Save the Frogs Day on Sunday, March 31. Free with Zoo admission, guests will enjoy keeper chats, a dart frog feeding demonstration, BioFact stations, and crafts. A scavenger hunt will encourage guests to find and learn all about the various species of frogs at the Zoo. A detailed schedule is available at senecaparkzoo.org/conservationdays.

In addition to meeting and teaching guests about frogs, animal care staff will share details about their work to save the critically endangered Panamanian golden frog, including a recent trip to Panama to help secure a sustainable future for this species.

Information about the Zoo's FrogWatch USA™ volunteer training program will also be available to guests. FrogWatch USA™ is a citizen science program that invites individuals and families to learn about the wetlands in their communities and help conserve amphibians by reporting data on the calls of local frogs and toads.

Now through March 31, Seneca Park Zoo is open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., with last entry at 3 p.m.

Internationally, and in our own backyard, Seneca Park Zoo plays a key role in species survival. Chartered as an educational institution in 1957 by New York State, the Seneca Park Zoo Society plays an integral role in supporting Monroe County, the owners and operators of the Zoo. Together, we are working to bring animals back from the brink of extinction.
